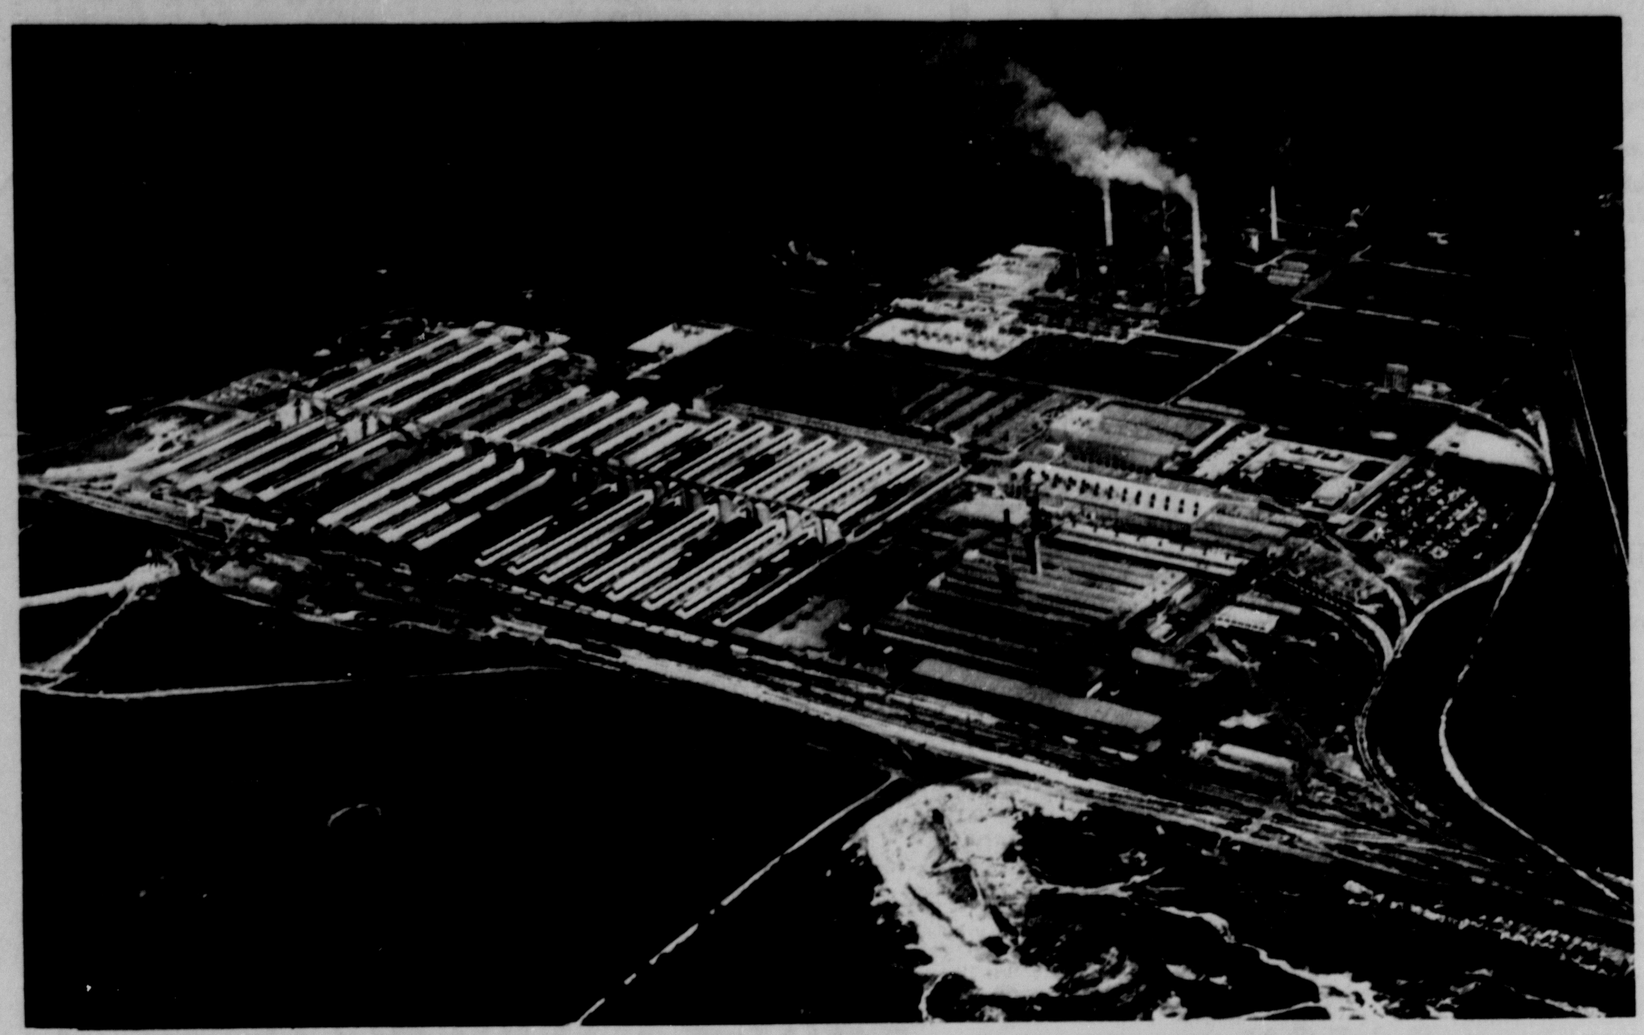
Vol. 113 No. 71 | Cameron, Milam County, Texas. November 16, 1972 | 10¢ Per Copy | 10 Pages Today



20 YEARS LATER, Alcoa's Rockdale works 1972. The 1500 employees are marking anniversary week for the aluminum smelter, largest in the country. The smelter has 280,000 tons annual capacity, and numbers 175 employees from Cameron. The plant produces an annual payroll of $17 million. The anniversary celebration includes a reception at Cameron for executives, and "mini-parties" for employees during the week.

Alcoa RW Marks 20th Anniversary

Alcoa's Rockdale Works kicks off a weeklong 20th anniversary observance Friday, highlighted by a visit of the plant's first plant manager, John D. Harper, now chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the world's oldest and biggest aluminum producer.

Harper will be accompanied by S. A. (Al) Jones, also at Rockdale Works when the first ingot was poured November 24, 1952. Jones was a young production supervisor then. Today, he directs Alcoa's worldwide aluminum-making network as smelting division manager.

Harper and Jones, both headquartered in the Pittsburgh corporate offices, will tour the firm's biggest aluminum smelter -- Rockdale Works -- and address employee groups. They will join local management officials Friday as guests at a community-sponsored luncheon in Rockdale.

Employees will be greeted Thursday by billboard and poster messages throughout the plant, spotlighting the 20th production anniversary. A series of mini-birthday parties are scheduled for Rockdale Works' four shifts, starting at 7 a.m. Friday and ending at 1 a.m. Saturday.

Nearby Cameron, the county seat, will get in the act Tuesday night when it honors company officials at an appreciation buffet-reception. Over 600 business, professional, governmental and agricultural leaders and the news media from Austin to Waco have been invited.

According to Fred P. Bergeron, works manager, Rockdale Works employs over 1,500 people with an annual payroll of about $17 million. Another 225 are employed at its adjacent power facility operated by Industrial Generating Company.

Rockdale Works still has 169 Alcoans who were here when the first ingot was produced 20 years ago, Bergeron said.

Alcoa Traces Expansion Into Largest Smelter

Special To The Herald

The Democrats were picking up the pieces, still wondering what happened. War hero General Dwight Eisenhower rushed frantically to assemble the Republicans' first White House administration in decades.

The Korean conflict -- they never called that one a war either -- raged on, and the need for strategic material such as aluminum was pressing.

That, plus thousands of acres of "the Cinderella of fuels," lignite, triggered boom-like industrialization of Central Texas when Alcoa's multi-million dollar Rockdale Works raced into production only 13 months after groundbreaking. Tipping the giant vat to cast the first aluminum ingot were the plant's first boss, John D. Harper, and smelting division manager R. T. Whitzel of the Pittsburgh corporate headquarters.

The time: 20 years ago this month. To be precise, it was November 24, 1952.

The plant and community kick off a weeklong 20th anniversary observance Thursday, and if Harper -- now board chairman and chief executive officer -- hadn't kept abreast of almost continuous expansion and modernization he wouldn't know the place when he flies in for the festivities.

BIGGEST PRODUCER

Today, Rockdale Works is Aluminum Company of America's biggest metal producer in the world with eight potlines and the capacity for turning out 280,000 tons annually. That's 1.5 million pounds a day in the 24-hour, continuous operation.

The original four-potline plant was expanded by two more lines in 1956 and the Central Texas smelter became Alcoa's largest in 1969 with the addition of the seventh and eighth lines. For the first time, Alcoa began producing more aluminum in Texas than in any other state. Rockdale Works and Point Comfort Operations down on the Gulf Coast have a joint capacity for making 455,000 tons annually.

Rockdale Works has one of the world's biggest carbon electrode-making facilities and a diversified ingot plant which converts molten aluminum into extrusion, sheet and remelt ingot. The latter produces everything from a 50-pound to a 22,000 - pound product.

POWDER UNIT

A couple of fabricating facilities further enhanced the company's local investment in the 1960's. An atomized aluminum powder unit was built in 1966 and has been expanded twice. It's now the biggest aluminum powder producer in the U. S. Then came a redraw rod facility in 1968 which spews out "raw material" for Alcoa's electrical conductor -- or wire -- fabricating plants, primarily its nearby Marshall (Texas) Works

And there's more on the way.

It was announced this fall that Alcoa would spend several million dollars installing a new casting facility at Rockdale Works, permitting production of 30-foot sheet into weighing 40,000 pounds. The 14-month construction project will begin early next year, according to works manager Fred P. Bergeron.

The plant manager summed it up appropriately with the news of that expansion by declaring it "another demonstration of Alcoa's faith in the future of Rockdale Works, its people and an understanding, cooperative community which has provided an excellent business climate for growth the last 20 years."

1,500 EMPLOYED

In contrast to the couple of hundred operating personnel in 1952, Rockdale Works' 1972 employment exceeds 1,500 with an annual payroll of $17 million -- or some $1.4 million a month.

Alcoa's community impact goes further. Like the $5 million in goods and services purchased annually from businesses throughout Central Texas. And the $550,000 in city, school, county and state taxes that the company will pay this year. It averages $10,577 a week in taxes for Rockdale Works.

The company is intent on being a good neighbor in each of its operating communities, says Bergeron.

FOUNDATION FUNDS

This year, for example, the Alcoa Foundation gave $100,000 to the Richards Memorial Hospital building fund and 10 acres of land for the hospital site. The Alcoa Foundation also gave $5,000 to the Lexington Community Park fund and $2,275 to the local United Fund campaign.

Earlier, the foundation gave $25,000 to the St. Edward Hospital development fund in Cameron, $20,000 to the Johns Community Hospital development fund in Taylor, $5,000 to the Rockdale Little League and $500 to help bring the Dallas Symphony Orchestra to Milam County.

As for Alcoa's future here, Bergeron sees nothing but more progress and prosperity for both the plant and community.

"We have a good fuel source, a work force intent on making us more competitive and excellent support from our Central Texas neighbors," he reflected. "A company couldn't ask for more. We're fortunate to be here and I see nothing but continued growth and progress for Rockdale Works."

$200,000 FHA Loan Approved For Pond Creek

A $200,000 Farmers Home Administration loan has been approved for the Pond Creek Watershed Authority of Falls and Milam Counties, according to an announcement by Sen. John Tower.

The funds will enable the Authority to start a project to prevent flooding and damage to roads and bridges through erosion and to provide recreational facilities along with domestic and livestock water to several communities in the watershed area.

The project calls for 22 flood water retarding structures, 166,825 feet of stream channel improvements and nine grade stabilization structures.

It is expected that operators on 258 farms on the flood plain and about 27 upland farms would directly benefit from the watershed project.

Rhode was reported being held in Falls County jail pending arraignment on charges of driving while intoxicated in connection with the accident.

Mr. Rice was born in Milam County and lived in Ben Arnold all of his life. He was a veteran of the Korean conflict.

POSITIVE NEGATIVE

You might hope your youngsters, if ever they undertake major projects, have the courage not to hit back.

The first exchange of blows or the first volleys fired delays if not destroys what is required for unity of purpose; and that is hope, a commodity slight at any time and slender these days.

113-113-113

Don't know about you, but I would rather deal with a roomful of Einsteins than one angry, ignorant man. But someone is always angry or ignorant or ignored.

113-113-113

Texas is the first state to house an office of Common Cause, an organization founded by John W. Gardner, former secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. He is eminently quoteable: Listen:

QUOTE:

Out of the ranks of educated Americans must come much of our most effective dissent and enlightened leadership. Neither role will be enhanced if they succumb to the cheap, but fashionable postures of contempt for the majority of their fellow citizens. Their duty is to teach, criticize, reform, persuade, and push -- but not with contempt. Their mission is not to lord it over the boobs but to stimulate, to set examples, to create models and to lead.

END OF QUOTE

Out of experience, you will find this nobility of purpose personally rewarding. And those you seek to help are the ones who least appreciate an effort and are likely to distort you to those whose approval is important.

I think, sometimes, people want someone to cry with them rather than to help them in any way. And this is sympathy and not love, which is the strongest motivation.

Too often, ideals which even survive reality, are considered foolish. And so the world runs on greed.

Buckholts Voters Approve Bonds

Buckholts area voters approved a bond issue for construction of a $135,000 sewage collection system and treatment plant.

Of the 126 votes cast in the election, 97 were for and 29 were opposed.

The bond election was called by the directors of Milam County Water Control and Improvement District No.

County Deer Hunters Await Season Opening

Deer season opens Saturday and prospects in the county look pretty good, considering the summer rain conditions. That's the word from Dale Moore, Milam County game management officer.

Limit again this year is two bucks and the season closes January 1. Shooting hours are from 30 minutes from sunrise to 30 minutes after sunset each day.

Moore reminded landowners that they must have a shooting preserve license if they lease land for hunting purposes. He said checks would be made on the licenses. Fee is $5 and the license may be obtained from Moore.

He estimated that about 20,000 acres have been leased for deer hunting this year, mostly in the southeast part of the county in the Hanover, Gause, and Milano areas.

"As usual, Milam County hunters go somewhere else to hunt, and hunters from other areas, like Houston, come to Milam County," Moore said.

From 100 to 200 bucks were taken in last year's deer season, he added.

Deer leasings have increased over the last few years in the county. Records kept by landowenrs will help game management officers to keep up with increases or decreases in the deer population, Moore said.

Some clear, cold weather would boost prospects for the season opening, he said.

He also reminded hunters to be sure of their target before shooting, to prevent hunting accidents. Moore also reminded hunters that deer must be tagged as soon as they are taken.

QUAIL SEASON

The county quail season will open December 1 this year, and close February 15. Bag limit will be 12 per day or 36 in possession.

THANKSGIVING IN A LAND OF PLENTY

Food is symbolic of Thanksgiving because the day itself was first set aside by the Pilgrims to give thanks for a bountiful harvest. The Turkey, golden brown and savory-scented ... the table decorated with clusters of grapes and rosy-cheeked apples ... spicy mince and creamy pumpkin pies ... this is the Thanksgiving feast that has become one of our most cherished traditions. It would be well if all of us take a moment this Thanksgiving to give thanks for all our blessings, in our own special way.

Mr. Briscoe's First Priority...

Anyone driving around the metro areas of Texas would agree with Gov.-elect Dolph Brisco's first proposal for immediate action on metro public transportation.

Most everyone sees this traffic problem because most people are in metro areas from time to time. Texas' road system is that good.

The other day in Houston, the traffic inched forward on the Gulf Freeway at evening rush hour the nearer to the central city ingoing traffic went. It would have been the same anywhere in the city.

If some kind of public transportation system through the middle or overhead had been moving people, the flow of traffic would most likely have been easier, even though at peak times it may still be great.

The Herald major metro triangle, identified more than 10 years ago, is a likely path for public transportation among metro San Antonio, Fort Worth-Dallas and Houston. The minor metro triangle, but nonetheless important, of Austin-Waco-Bryan, would fit into a public transportation proposal of the majors and serve a changing Central Texas perimeter.

The Governor-elect's proposal for a study and a state transportation commission is timely. New or additional systems have been constructed in San Francisco and Chicago, scene the other day of a major train collision, but such concentrations of population are also in North and South Texas.

This is an example of the priorities developing in Texas today. It's good to see Mr. Briscoe start there.

'Compared To What'...

Texas head football coach Darrel Royal was being interviewed on his weekly Longhorn football show.

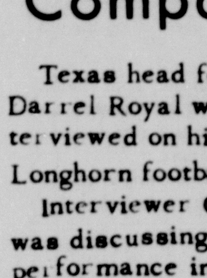
Interviewer Cactus Pryor was discussing Texas' performance in a game and Royal answered a question with a philosophic "compared to what."

He was making a comparison, without which it is difficult for people to know up from down, this from that. He was seeing in football competition, like anything else, the relativity of things as they occur.

In football vernacular, if you have an undefeated season playing lesser teams, are you as good as a team with a 5-5 season playing a "suicide season" of first-rate powers week after week?

Cameron, for example, enjoyed a 6-2-2 season in AAA football, a fine season considering the re-entry in AAA for the first time in 15 years. The same season may have been appreciated as much by local fans in AA, but it has more luster in AAA. That is "compared to what."

Darrel Royal is highly qualified to make comparisons. His is one of the best records in major college coaching in the past 15 years.



"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

BIG SPENDERS TALK NAY, VOTE YEA

REP. HAROLD R. COLLIER (Ill.) ". . . In looking at the actions by Congress on authorization and spending bills it appears that any sense of fiscal responsibility has waned. I doubt whether anyone who has reviewed the budget-busting operations of this Congress can refute this conclusion.

"Regrettably it is the old political story of making a Christmas tree out of virtually every bill which has broad political sex appeal.

"In the process are not the budget-busters ignoring the simple fact that we are either obligated to go further into debt in a manner that will cause a new round of inflation or provide the increased taxes necessary to meet these obligations?...

"Paradoxically, many Members of Congress who voted against increasing the debt ceiling are the same Representatives who have consistently supported greater deficits through bloated appropriation bills..

"It is regrettable that there is not some MEANS OF INFORMING THE GENERAL PUBLIC WITH REGARD TO THE DETAILED RECORD OF VOTES CAST BY THE MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES ON APPROPRIATION BILLS...

"In most instances the Members of this House who support an increase in any appropriation bill regardless of the merit of the subject of the legislation are regarded as friends and those who try to keep spending in line are automatically enemies of their cause.

"For example, if an amendment is offered to increase an already expanded expenditure for some environmental purpose, the Representative who votes to keep that expenditure within the budget figure is presumed to be in favor of dirty water and dirty air...

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

Space limitations prevent newspapers from consistently printing their Congressmen's voting record on every appropriation bill. The Congressional Record, not available to every taxpayer, is their only means of checking on his final action.

Unfortunately, a President, be he a Democrat or Republican, has to resort to the veto to slow down Federal spending. Many times even his veto is overruled. The taxpayers lose, the lobbyists win.

Daniel Reveals Program

AUSTIN

State Rep. Price Daniel, Jr., unopposed candidate for Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, revealed a comprehensive and detailed reform program Wednesday at an Austin press conference.

Daniel's program includes the passage of nine new statutes during the next session of the Texas Legislature. Daniel stated that the passage of the proposed statutes would bring about a more open, efficient, and economical government.

"Six of the statutes in the nine point program are directed towards giving the citizens of this State greater access to and knowledge of the operation of their State government and the activities of their State officials," Daniel said.

The proposed legislative program includes: a stronger Open Meetings Law; an Ethics and Financial Disclosure Law for State Officials; a Public Access to Government Documents Law; a Campaign Financing Law for the Speaker of the House.

Two other statutes advocated by Daniel would reduce the powers of the Speaker, which many legislators and citizens have critized as being too broad. Daniel said these two statutes, providing a one term limit for Speakers of the House and a prohibition against any House member making threats or offering favors to gain votes for a Speaker candidate, would also help to bring about economy in state government by reducing "pork barreling."

Daniel said that the ninth bill, limiting the power of conference committees, would save the taxpayers millions of dollars each year.

"This bill would, for example, prevent the Appropriations Conference Committee, which is made up of five members of the House and five members of the Senate, from adding millions of dollars to the budget without prior approval by the full membership of the House and Senate. Had we had this law during the past Session, it would have saved the citizens of Texas thirty million dollars last year alone."

Daniel, a moderate Democrat, said he would use his influence to gain quick passage through the House of his nine proposals when the 63rd Legislature convenes in January, 1973.

Kubiak Raps Congress For Lack Of Highway Funds

Rep. Dan Kubiak said Congress "dealt a stunning blow to Texas highway builders" by adjourning without extending the federal highway aid program.

He said strenuous efforts by both Texas senators and almost all of the House members from Texas failed to secure the needed funds for highway contracts in Texas.

"When a new Congress convenes in January," Kubiak said in his weekly newsletter, "it will be 60 to 90 days before any law can be enacted appropriating federal highway aid out of the Highway Trust Fund built up through gasoline taxes paid by you and me.

"It is my hope that quick action will be taken by Congress and that the administration will stop diverting funds from this trust for mass transit."

The Williams - Steiger Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 has come down, and Kubiak said it is plaguing many of the farmers.

It states that a farmer who employs anyone at anytime in addition to members of his family must:

Display a poster at the point when employees normally report to work and

Keep up to date and have available for inspection a "log of occupational injuries and illnesses."

These may be obtained from the Department of Labor Regional Office or from the county ASCS office.

Santa Fe Cited For Safety

For the second consecutive year Santa Fe Railway has been cited by the National Safety Council for having the best employe safety record among the nation's major railroads who perform 40 million man-hours or more of work.

National Safety Council awards are based on statistics compiled by the Federal Railroad Administration, Department of Transportation.

Santa Fe also received a Golden Spike award, along with 12 other railroads, in recognition of community safety work; an award of honor for non-competitive employe safety achievements, and a certificate of commendation for 636,089 man-hours without an injury at its Somerville tie-treating plant.

Sen. Tower Thanks Voters

Statement by Senator John Tower:

"I want to thank the voters of Texas for reaffirming their confidence in my record of service. I will do everything I can to merit that confidence in the next six years.

"I believe that Texans responded to my positive campaign and I'm very proud of the widespread support I received throughout the state. I feel that this was a victory in depth since I ran well in urban and rural Texas.

"I'm looking forward to working with President Nixon and his Administration to achieve peace and stability in the world and to carry out sound domestic programs."

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

In all the jumble of election news I read last week I remember one item which said that despite the big voter-turnout and the long lines at some polling places, still only 55 per cent of the eligible voters voted. This, the article said, was a deplorable thing.

I don't know about that. One way of looking at it is that it wasn't even necessary for that many to vote.

I started watching the returns on television and the first rattle out of the box, when less than one per cent of the votes had been counted, the networks were alreay telling us who had won and by how many percentage points.

If one per cent of the voters can indicate who's going to win, what are the other 99 per cent doing standing in line waiting to vote?

Why, the networks started giving what turned out to be accurate estimates of the winners and losers three hours before the polls closed in some parts of the country with different time zones.

It seems to me the voters in those zones, standing in long lines waiting to cast their ballots, were about like fans standing in line outside a stadium trying to buy tickets to a football game that was already over.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not comparing elections to football. You think I'm crazy? I know which one is more important. Ask any candidate who forgot his knowledge of human nature and scheduled a rally on Friday night when the local team was playing at home.

But what puzzles me is this: if the networks are so smart on elections, how come they fall so flat on entertainment? Where do they keep those guys when no election is on?

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

No one still around after these 54 years will ever forget that First Armistice Day there in Cameron on the morning of November 11th, 1918. I well remember I was busy with household duties when I heard my Presbyterian Church bell ringing and then all the whistles, bells and sirens turned loose.

I ran to the telephone and of course all the plugs were down but a voice was joyfully screaming - "the war's over - the war's over". I grabbed up my oldest son of two years and ran out the back door, leaving my other child in his "kiddie coop".

I ran in the direction that all the people in my neighborhood were running -- to the court house. When I got there the court yard was full of people from all walks of life - all laughing, crying, praying and embracing - "he'll be coming home, caus its over, over there".

I remember the Baptist minister, Mr. Blaylock, was standing on the court house steps, making a speech or rather he was trying to speak between sobs, for you see he had a son "over there". All of the business houses closed spontaneously, and everybody, but everybody was joining in the rejoicing and thanksgiving.

Cameron was surely on cloud nine that day and for many, many years afterwards we all were glad to fry our chickens, make our potato salad, pies and cakes for our boys back from World War I.

And today, November 11th, 1972? Well, we have old glory proudly waving out front here at our house.

Get an electric dryer.

The day you do, drippy washday hang-ups simply dry up and go away! So do worries about rainy days, dusty days, heavy baskets of wet wash and scratchy towels.

With a modern electric dryer, any time—night or day—is a good wash 'n dry time. Clothes stay clean and smell fresh. Towels go soft as a dandelion puff and most wrinkles fluff away—cutting pressing time to nothing. And the gentle, even heat of an electric dryer is exactly right for wash-and-wear fabrics!

Stalk Destruction Deadline Is Nov. 30

Cotton stalk destruction deadline in 44 north central and east counties in Texas including Milam is November 30, Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said today.

"Early stalk destruction in these counties will not only result in eliminating habitat for pink bollworms but will also aid in reducing all other cotton insect infestations next year," White said.

Farm Bureau President Cites Year Of Progress

HOUSTON

Asserting that the year of 1972 "has been the most successful year in the history of the Texas Farm Bureau" TFB President J. T. (Red) Woodson reeled off a succession of accomplishments to document the claim in his annual president's address at the TFB convention being held here.

The year was successful in membership growth, he pointed out. TFB gained 9,541 member families in 1972, the largest gain in 17 years.

"1972 has been the most successful year in the history of Texas Farm Bureau also because of our accomplishments in Austin," he declared. He said because Farm Bureau was in Austin, "we fared well in agricultural appropriations." Farm Bureau was also active, he said, in the passage of a resolution asking for a constitutional convention to prohibit busing of school children to achieve racial balance.

"We were able to defeat a bill that would have required land owners to have a fishing license to fish in their own lakes and ponds if they had been stocked with fish from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department," he added.

Two main issues that were before the last special session of the Legislature were competitive insurance rates and farm trailer regulations, he recalled. "Farm Bureau had a major stake in both," he declared.

Farm Bureau policy favors competitive insurance rates, he pointed out, adding that "Texas Farm Bureau testified and was active on this issue." Many proposals set forth, according to Woodson, would have raised the cost of insurance to Farm Bureau members. "Your organization was a factor in preventing unsatisfactory insurance legislation. This matter will be reconsidered in 1973, and Farm Bureau will be there to represent your interests," he assured some 1,500 Farm Bureau leaders attending the convention.

"The other item that was vital to agriculture was trailer legislation," he said. "Farm Bureau was a major force in working with the Legislature in passing Senate Bills 20 and 21, giving us a workable trailer bill for farmers and ranchers," he declared.

Screwworms Break Record

To the surprise of no one with livestock, October was another record month in a record - breaking screwworm year.

The month saw 15,743 positive cases recorded at the Mission Lab. It was the fifth straight month in which a new all-time mark had been established in the 10-year-old program. In fact only four monthly totals for 1972 have been surpassed in previous years, February through May.

As always, Texas set the pace, this time with 14,503 infestations. Arizona followed with 531, Oklahoma had 350, New Mexico 345, California 5, Arkansas 4, Florida 2, and Kansas and Louisiana 1 each.

Florida's cases were the first there since the flesh-eating insect was eliminated from that area in the late 1950's. Louisiana had never had a confirmed case. Nor had Kansas.

The previous record for the month was established in 1962, when 9,015 cases were tallied. This year's figure was 74 per cent worse, Screwworm Lab officials noted.

By way of contrast only five cases were submitted in October, 1969, the alltime low. This year that many were received every four minutes of each working day all month long.

Although the October cases were almost 3,000 less than September, Mission Lab officials refused to take heart at the apparent reduction.

"We are convinced from our conversations with ranchers that exactly the opposite is true," said Dr. James Novy, veterinarian in charge of field operations. Discouraged livestock producers, he is certain, are just submitting a smaller per cent of their samples for identification. "Historically, October has nearly always been the wrost month we've had, and we see no reason to believe this year has been any different."

Meeting To Discuss Co-op Cotton Gin

There will be a meeting Tuesday, Nov. 21 at 7 p.m. in the Yoe High Ag Building to discuss the possibility of a co-op cotton gin in the area.

Johnny Feagan of the A&M Extension Service will lead the discussion and also speaking will be a representative of the Association of Co-ops.

All cotton farmers in the area are urged to attend.

Calf Prices Above Parity... Stalk Destruction Deadline Nears... SAD Help Is On The Way... Turkey Time Nears.

Calf prices, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service notes, are above parity by almost $3 per hundredweight. Effective parity for calves is $44.90; average market price in Texas is $47.70. But only calves are above effective parity levels. All other farm prices remain below parity.

Cotton showed the biggest decline in price of all other crops. The average cotton price in the state is 21.6 cents per pound. This compared with 26 cents one year ago. Effective parity for cotton is 56.06 cents per pound.

In other crops, wheat showed a gain of 21 cents compared to a month ago with an average price now at $1.96 per bushel. Corn was up five cents at $1.42 per bushel compared to a month ago. Grain sorghum also showed a nickel increase at $2.16 average per hundredweight.

Hog prices were down slightly in Texas compared to a month ago. Average now is $26.80 per hundred pounds compared to $27.70 a month ago. Effective parity for hogs is $31.10 per hundred pounds. Beef cattle averaged $33.40 per hundredweight, still well below the effective parity of $37.40 per hundred pounds.

Egg producers continue to have pricing problems with a 36 cent per dozen average to 38 cents a month ago. Effective parity for eggs is 56.8 cents per dozen.

COTTON stalk destruction deadline is not far off for 44 north central and east counties. Stalk destruction deadline is Nov. 30. Officials urge farmers in those counties to destroy stalks as soon as possible. Recent rains throughout most of the area will keep farmers from getting into fields in the immediate future.

But when a break in the weather does occur and fields are dry enough to work in, farmers can through early stalk destruction reduce carryover of pink bollworms and other cotton insects. In other areas of the state, regrowth of cotton stalks is a problem, and such regrowth should be destroyed.

SAD but true, help is on the way. SAD is St. Augustine Decline and it has been found in lawns throughout the state. It is a virus disease of the grass, and there is no cure for it.

A new variety of St. Augustine Grass--FLORI-TAM--should be available to the publicsoon, perhaps next year. The Texas Department of Agriculture is in charge of seed certification in Texas and has certified 17 producers who are now growing out 42 acres of the new variety. The grass is also resistant to chinch bugs and brown patch.

FULL impact of the new pesticide legislation signed into law recently won't be felt for a few years yet, but it will affect every Texan. Rules and regulations as they will apply to states will have to be studied and implemented. States will have a great deal of power in controlling the use of pesticides.

THANKSGIVING time is getting closer, and Texans can be assured of plentiful supplies of the traditional turkey. Special programs promoting and featuring turkeys produced in Texas will be aimed at consumers.

The turkey industry in Texas is cooperating with the Texas Agricultural Products--TAP--program to acquaint Texans with the quality of Texas turkeys.

LOOK FOR RED JACKET WINNERS in your area

Farmers whose yield of Pioneer brand hybrids equaled or exceeded their county average will be wearing bright red jackets awarded by the local Pioneer dealer and Pioneer Hi-Bred Company.

When you see a man with a RED JACKET displaying the Pioneer symbol, you'll know that he combined good crop management and lots of hard work to earn the jacket he's wearing.

Garden Club Has Meeting, Brunch

The Civic Garden Club met on November 9 in the home of Mrs. Nelson Green with Mrs. Robert Hudson as co-hostess. Brunch was served to 13 members and one guest, Mrs. Harry Tag.

Mrs. M. H. Wimberly presented the program for the day with 'Herbs' as the topic. She pointed out that herbs are easily grown both indoors or out-doors and serve to make foods more appealing and appetizing.

Suggested as in-door herbs are Basil, Garden Cress and Oregano. Herbs grown out-doors most successfully are parsley, chalots and dill. Mrs. Wimberly said potting soil prepared for house plants is suitable for herb culture and cautioned against over feeding.

During the business session with Mrs. Leo Fuchs presiding, the club selected bird note cards as their fund raising project.

Mrs. Milton Falkner brought the arrangement for judging. She combined red, green and yellow peppers with garlic leaves for greenery set in a black container with a square of Franciscan tile as a base.

Trotline Can Be Hazard

Beware, fishermen, a trotline is a multi-hooked death trap in a high wind.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department cautions trotline enthusiasts to stay away from lines when the wind gets above 30 mph.

A single hook through a hand or piece of clothing is enough to drag a fisherman overboard. Some mainlines have up to 50 hooks and getting tangled in one of these could be disastrous.

The Parks and Wildlife Department suggests that the safest way to play out line is to allow the mainline to run across the bow of the boat, and handle one hook at a time.

Since Oct. 1970, department records show that eight Texans have lost their lives while tending trotlines. Most were dragged overboard or drowned when the boat capsized and they became tangled in the line.

Baylor's Lacy Helps Spark Win

Baylor tailback Gary Lacy of San Angelo isn't fast, doesn't have overpowering drive, and isn't a fancy-Dan runner. But, he's squirmed his way to five touchdowns in helping to spark a rejuvinated Baylor Bear offense.

The former all-stater at San Angelo Central who carved out All-American honors at Wharton Junior College, boasts a potent 3.8 average per carry for the surprising Bears and ranks as the team's third leading pass receiver with 13 catches for 124 yards.

Coach Grant Teaff says that his ace running back is indeedan enigma. "You really don't pay much attention to Gary until the game is over. Then you start looking at the statistics and you find that he's had another super day."

Actually Lacy had always intended playing for Teaff, who attracted the youngster's attention many years ago as speaker at a San Angelo church service. "I made up my mind right then that I would play for Coach Teaff wherever he went."

NOTES, QUOTES, GOULASH

In case you are wondering, New Aggie boss Emory Bellard will not consider 1972 a successful season should his team defeat bitter rival University of Texas Thanksgiving. Before the Aggies opened the season with Wichita, Bellard said, "No, I wouldn't settle for a 6-5 season. I don't know any coach who would settle for mediocrity" After losing six straight, following the Wichita victory, Emory's Aggies blew any chance of even going 6-5. But, you can tell old Emory is a A&M New - grounder. Some of those Old Time Aggies will remind him that a victory over the Hated Burnt Orange does not leave a smell of mediocrity.

Football is unpredictable. Oh, sure, everybody knows that! Well, not really. We all get to believeing we can figure it out. Then, Bam! Where could you find a bigger chinch than Arkansas as the potential SWC Championship? Now, all those with 20-20 Hindsight tell you they saw chinks in that Big Red Armor. But, don't you believe it. Nobody raised an eyebrow to such statements as Ish Haley's in the Little Rock paper week before USC shocked Arkansas, 31-10: "For his senior season," Haley wrote, "Offensive Guard Glenn Lowe is aiming at the moon. He wants the Razorbacks in the Cotton Bowl and the Number One rank the following morning." With the Big Red Rocket, Joe Ferguson, on the launching pad, most knowledgeable foorball analysts believed old Lowe was, in fact, on his way to the moon."

ISH, TOO.

What did Ish think of Arkansas' chances before USC? The LR Journalist wrote: "Arkansas has the nation's potentially most powerful offense and the most experienced defensive unit Frank Broyles has enjoyed in years."

What happened to the Beautiful Dream? Who knows? But, never underestimate the devastating effect of (1) Injury to Key-People (Fullback Marsh White, Linebacker Scott Binion, etc); (2) Too Much Preseason publicity; (3) Underestimating the opposition and (4) the law of averages. Those are bitter enemies to college teams who aspire to National Championships, Conference titles, Heisman Trophies and Bowl victories. Ask Darrell Royal. He's been living with those pressures almost since the day he arrived at Texas 15 years ago.

We flat ran out of space in trying to work all the Family connections into that column last week. Consider that Randy Fry is a strong Freshman Safety for Dad Hayden Fry at SMU or that Great LSU Quarterback Bert Jones is the son of Dub Jones the great Cleveland Brown Running Back out of Tulane. Or that SMU's Number Two Tight-end is Ralph Blount, the 6-4 215 pound Longview Junior, who happens to be the son of Peppy Blount, the old Bobby Layne - era UT end.

Then, there are Reserve UT Defensive Backs Kim Wade, son of Henry Wade, the famed Dallas District Attorney and Rob Riviere, son of one-time UT Golf Cpatain Bernie Riviere. And, nephew of Mickey Smith, halfback on Royal's first UT team. More, later.

At Alcoa opportunity is for everyone

To learn, develop and advance . . .
To do more with skills . . .
To help make a product for better living . . .
To go as far as ability and energy can lead . . .
And to be rewarded.

This is the opportunity and challenge Alcoa offers all of its men and women, and people like Computer Operator Santos Gonzales at Rockdale Works are making the most of it.

Since joining Alcoa, Santos hasn't been content with the "eight-to-five routine." He came aboard as a potroom clerk in 1965 and seized the chance for greater opportunity and challenge two years later by moving to Process Engineering as a technician. Through constant study, learning and going that "extra mile," he has developed a wealth of computer skills. The aluminum makers at Alcoa's biggest smelter lean heavily on Santos these days because computers are an important part of day-to-day operations.

There are many others like Santos at Rockdale Works, employees with ambition, talent, pride in themselves and in their jobs. And they're eager to move ahead with Alcoa where there is equal opportunity for everyone to work, develop, advance and enjoy the rewards of personal satisfaction. That's the way we like it.

'Psalms For Modern Man' Available In Large Print

"The Psalms for Modern Man," in Today's English Version, is now available in large-size print from the American Bible Society.

Published in direct response to numerous requests for a large-type edition of these ancient hymns and prayers, the new publication was produced by one of the newest innovations of the printing industry, an automated printing process.

Homes for the aged, nursing homes and hospitals throughout the country, welcomed "The Psalms for Modern Man" upon its publication in December 1970, and soon began asking the American Bible Society for the same volume in large-size print so their residents with failing eyesight could use it for inspiration and solace.

These requests were augmented by those from individuals with vision dimming because of age or disease, who no longer could read ordinary-size print. Clergymen made a similar request, emphasizing the ease with which the large-type Psalms could be read from the pulpit or lectern.

To quickly comply with these requests, the Society made use of a Cameron press which George Amann, the Society's production supervisor, labels "the most advanced press of its kind in the printing industry today."

Collated books flowed in a line on a conveyor belt to the perfect binding unit and were delivered as complete units at the fast rate of 2,000 per hour. This automactic process saved the Society about 15 per cent over the cost of conventional printing methods.

With the burgeoning world population and soaring prices characteristic of the latter half of the 20th century the nonprofit American Bible Society is continually challenged in its efforts to provide the Sciptures, without doctrinal note or comment, to people everywhere at a price all can afford.

"The Psalms for Modern Man," the first book of the Old Testament to be published in Today's English Version, has achieved a circulation figure of 3 1/4 million copies.

Couple Shows Slides Of European Stay

ROGERS

Mr. and Mrs. John Shannon of Killeen described their four and one-half years of adventures in Europe to the congregation of the First Baptist Church of Rogers Sunday night.

Shannon, who was a comptroller with the United States army in Europe, and Mrs. Shannon who taught in American schools while in Europe, showed souveniers from the 16 European nations they visited. They described their experiences while showing slides of many churches and other interesting buildings in Europe.

The program was sponsored by the Baptist Women of the church. The Rev. Shelby Jones, pastor, introduced the program.

The Shannons lived in Orleans, France; and in Mannerheim and Bremerhaven, Germany. They made tours of the other 14 nations.

"Europe, a Mission Field", written by J. B. Hugh, was the basis of the program.

This month the Baptist Women are studying the world mission program of Southern Baptists. Mrs. M. H. Cannon is president of the local women's organization.

center of life

At our house bedtime reading ranges from the "just so stories" to the encyclopedia, from "Mary Poppins" to the Bible, depending upon Billy's interest.

And always there are the questions. "How high are the stars, Daddy?" "Where did the dinosaurs go?" "Daddy, did Adam love Eve?" "What makes electricity spark?"

How challenging to watch the alert mind of a youngster mature! I know I'll have to keep on my toes with new ideas in every field, if I want answers for Billy as his questions grow more profound.

Of one thing I am confident, the age-old truths of my church and the Bible never change. Integrity, responsibility and the love of God are a source of strength now as in every age. I have no qualms about teaching my son that God's Church is the center of a man's life.
